Dear Mr. Weisberg—

Your letter came while I was away in a clinic having all my wisdom teeth out, (everything always happens all at once it seems. But because of that I waited a few days to call the American Embassy.

Again they were as you expected them to be. The lady I spoke to said the state department dealt almost entirely with the foreign office and that the embassy played a very small role. She said to contact the Magistrate's court but when I pressed about the embassy she said to write to and the proper department would take care of it. Yes, undoubtably the government is not like the kind you read about in books. I'd address it to whatever dept sounds best [natories or something. They are terrible (embassy)]

It's very true boys can be hurt as girls cannot and the draft board business seems to be one of the more popular avenues for furthering that end. It's quite sad it's used like that.

Strange John Pilger didn't reply. I wonder if he received your letter. I should imagine you must have alot of difficulty with the mail service. My prof has no doubt that We'll stay clear of Downay then. He didn't impress me too much in his letter - from long ago. My prof thought he had some way out ideas and was interested in talking to him.

Oh in case you didn't receive my postcard thank you again for the two books. Really great of you. I'm in a speech class now and our big exam kind of thing is to give a 15 minute speech on some subject — the speech being persuasive in nature. I'm going to try and write one or rather give one on this commission business & all the question involved. So I'm glad I have another copy of Whitewash I that CIA guy still has my other. His boss by the way is in my speech class. They are all very secretive. It amuses me sometimes. I shall keep a look out for anything in the papers and ask my prof to do the same. We're both behind you. When will Coup D'état be ready? Suppose soon. I've a lecture on a Russian [illegible] I've got to give him.
